Neglect to provide the birds with a bath is a fruitful source of sore feet. During the breeding season the hens are liable to get their feet clogged with the nesting material; the sand and excreta adhere to this, and sore feet are the result. The bird affected should be caught, its feet soaked in warm water, all dirt removed, and the sores anointed with a little vaseline or spermaceti ointment. Swollen Joints. These sometimes occur through the bird getting caught by the feet in the wires of the cage. The parts affected should be well bathed in warm water, and painted with friar s balsam. Tumours. Canaries are not often troubled with tumours, yet occasionally they make their appearance. The part usually affected is the beak and head. Tumours are caused by a stoppage of the natural secretions of the skin. They differ from abscesses in that there is no inflammation attending their growth. Immediately a tumour makes its appearance the bird affected should be taken to a veterinary surgeon. It is not advisable for a fancier to attempt treating it himself. Tympany. Hens are often affected with tympany during the breeding season. The skin becomes inflated with air, but the bird does not seem inconvenienced thereby. The distended skin may be pricked with a needle. The air will then escape, and the skin resume its normal appearance. N Typhoid Fever. This disease, I am thankful to say, has...
